Reproduction Quality Agreement for Copywork

I understand that the submission of all originals to Chromatics for copy reproduction constitutes an agreement and understanding that COPIES ARE NEVER EXACT REPRODUCTIONS of the original material. In a side by side comparison there may be noticeable, unpredictable and unavoidable differences in color, contrast and clarity. I understand that no copy process, photographic or electronic, reproduces all colors in exactly the same way the human eye sees them on the original. On occasion, the corrections for one color may have an adverse effect on the reproduction of another color within the same image.
